The following corrections should be noted:

1 St Vincent

Mariners are advised not to stop on the west coast of St Vincent until they have checked the situation via www.safetyandsecuritynet.com.

To pass by the west coast of St Vincent heading south, consult the sailing directions on the reverse of Chart B.

Going north, DM Street advises the following:

'Take off from either Blue Lagoon (St Vincent) or Admiralty Bay (Bequia) on the first of the weather-going tide. Work your way eastwards until you have a straight shot north to Vieux Fort (or, once clear of the northeast corner of Bequia, go to the uninhabited island of Baliceaux to spend the night, and take off the next day on a straight shot to Vieux Fort).

This is an easy trip if the wind is south of east, a tight reach if the wind is east. If the wind is north of east, forget about going up the east coast of St Vincent.' (ILNW 137/10)
